Woman gets probated sentence on meth charges

Arrested again two days later on DUI, other charges

ROBBINS

By Larry Rowell
Staff Writer

A woman being sentenced in Casey County Circuit Court on April 22 walked out with a probated sentence after pleading guilty to an amended drug charge. But her freedom would be short-lived.

Appearing before Casey Circuit Court Judge Judy Vance, Samantha L. Robbins, 24, of 1487 Shugars Hill Road, Liberty, was sentenced to 10 years in prison, probated for five years, on a charge of manufacturing methamphetamine, amended to complicity to manufacture meth. Robbins was also charged with first offense, first-degree possession of a controlled substance, meth.

In separate but unrelated cases the same day, Vance also sentenced Ronald D. DeHart, and his wife, Sarah Renee, to 10 years in prison, probated for five years, also on manufacturing meth charges, amended to complicity to manufacture meth.

The trio were sentenced based on recommendations from Casey

County Commonwealth's Attorney Gail Williams.

As part of that plea agreement from Williams, Robbins and the DeHarts agreed not to commit any more crime and to enroll and complete a drug court program.

Arrested again

Robbins was back in jail

The committee planning the new Casey County Education and Community Center met on April 24 at City Hall to hear updates on the $3.6 million college facility with construction scheduled to begin in late September. SCC announces contribution to new downtown college in Liberty

By Larry Rowell
Staff Writer

The new college planned for downtown Liberty received a major boost last week when an official from Somerset Community College pledged furniture for the classrooms and offices.

Larry Abbott, Chief Operations Officer at SCC, made the announcement at an April 24 meeting of government, civic, community, and area college officials at Liberty City Hall.

"Dr. Marshall authorized us to go ahead and purchase, when the appropriate time comes, the classroom furniture and the office and lounge furniture. We feel like the commitment to the offices and the classroom new furnishings would be approximately $100,000," he said. Dr. Jo Marshall is president of SCC.

This impromptu group meets monthly to plan and discuss any new developments concerning the Casey County Community and Education Center, which is projected to be built on Pettyjohn Street at a cost of $3.6 million.

Jim Brown, Community Development Specialist with the Lake Cumberland Area Development District in Russell Springs, said that there's still no news on a $500,000 Appalachian Regional Commission grant that officials expected to have news of in mid-March.

However, Brown said that he's not overly concerned that Casey County Fiscal Court Judge/Executive Ronald Wright hasn't heard anything about the grant.

"With our discussions with the staff in Frankfort, the people in Washington should make a decision by mid-May at the latest, with the money in place by the end of May. It's 95 percent certain," Brown said.

With the ARC grant, the college will have $1.7 million in hand with plans to raise or borrow the remaining $1.9 million.

Part of the $1.7 million is a $500,000 Community Development Block Grant that the county recently received. Within four months of the date of signing for this grant, construction has to begin

More than 40 pounds of drugs turned in on RX Take Back Day

By Wade Daffron
Staff Writer

Casey County lost over 40 pounds this weekend.

This past Saturday, approximately 42 pounds of drugs were turned in during "RX Take Back Day."

"We're considering it a tremendous success," Liberty Police Chief Steven Garrett said.

The event, a collaborative effort between law enforcement and local entities, allows the community to rid their homes of outdated or unused medicines.

Garrett said even with rainy weather, "a steady stream of people" visited Courthouse Square to participate in the county's sixth "Take Back Day."

The bulk of discarded medicine was "pills," Garrett said and all items collected are being properly disposed of by the Drug Enforcement Agency (DEA).

Garrett said "RX Take Back Day" is a safe alternative to throwing unwanted medicine in the trash or flushing it down toilets.

"This way we keep this stuff off the street, out of our water system and away from kids," he said.

Non-medical use of prescription drugs is the presently the second-most common form of drug abuse in the United States.

Most abused prescription drugs – especially among teens – come from family and friends.

Lt. Ronnie Smith, Sgt. Randy Dial, Deputy Sheriff Jamie Walters, Chief Steven Garrett, Jennifer Godbey, with the East Casey Family Resource Center and a member of the Casey County Agency for Substance Abuse Policy, Aimee Weddle with Adanta, and Lynn Woodrum, with AmeriCorps, were on hand at the Courthouse Square Saturday for RX Take Back Day.

through garbage or rob homes where drugs may be found.

Adanta's Regional Prevention Center and Casey County Agency for Substance Abuse Policy (ASAP) recently co-operated to purchase a permanent "RX Drop Box" which is located at the Liberty Police Department.

Unused medications (but not liquids), can be placed anonymously in the box – which will be under surveillance for security reasons. The drop box will be emptied daily.

For more information on proper disposal of unused medicine, visit www.dea.gov or call 800-882-9539.

EDITORIAL

In the (k)now

With this issue, The Casey County News is introducing a new feature sure to be popular among readers.

“Street Beat” will be a weekly rundown of activity called into the local dispatch center.

It will be informative and dare we say occasionally entertaining.

For example, you may see things such as: “5-1-13, 2:14 p.m. report of fire at the Old Smokehouse,” or “5-2-13, 9:20 p.m. report of dog barking on Woof Street.”

“Street Beat” is another step toward keeping you, the reader, the taxpayer, the citizen totally-informed.

Publication of these records gives the community a glance into the actions and interactions of local law enforcement and emergency personnel – who stay much busier than you may realize.

Did you hear sirens last night?

Did a fire truck pass you on your way to work this morning?

Did you see several police cars at the end of your road?

Now you’ll know the “what” and “when,” but not necessarily “who.”

Please don’t fret – confidentiality will be maintained. As a matter of fact, you won’t see names at all.

We must give kudos to Casey County Judge/Executive Ronald Wright who is working with us in this collaborative effort.

Because an informed community is one sure to grow and prosper.

It’s spring and I should do what?

It’s spring. Yes, that lovely time of year when everyone gets the urge to put things (seeds, flowers, ‘maters, bushes, shrubs) in the ground. It’s also that time of year when too many women are seized by the urge to do that horrible thing called “spring cleaning.” Horrors!

Okay, let’s face it — some people keep their houses clean all the time. They are the ones who have spring cleaning fever worse than those of us who give it what my mother called “a lick and a promise” once every two or three weeks. I don’t believe in spending time cleaning house when I could be reading. If I wanted a clean house, I’d hire a cleaning lady.

Back to spring cleaning. I remember what my grandmother did. She was one of those whose house was always spotless, the curtains were always crisp, every surface was free of dust all the time. Nevertheless, when spring came everything had to have that special cleaning.

In Mammy’s living room was the big old heating stove, a coal-burning Warm Morning. It had to be removed to the screened-in side porch, the stovepipe had to be cleaned or, if rusty, replaced. The stove and stovepipe then got a coating of some kind of black polish to be ready for winter. Soot would be cleaned out of the hole where the stovepipe went to the chimney. Sometimes a fierce rain would leak down the chimney into the living room and the wallpaper behind the stove would have to be cleaned or replaced.

Curtains came down, were washed, blueed, and starched within an inch of their lives and then ironed before they were put back up but the woodwork had to be scrubbed first. Every five years or so, Mammy would have the living room and hall repapered. Everything was in turmoil when all this was going on. Lord, it just makes me tired to think about it and I haven’t even told you about the parlor, the dining room, the kitchen, or the upstairs. She didn’t have a bathroom so that was one thing that didn’t require cleaning.

Joberta WELLS

Mom wasn’t as big a cleaning fanatic as my grandmother but she had a thing for paste wax. I remember Saturdays when my sister and I would mop the floors then get down on our hands and knees and apply Johnson’s paste wax to them. The worst part was removing the wax and polishing the floors, again on our hands and knees, with old wool sweaters. The floors looked great but what a chore! I hated it. It seemed like it would take forever to get the wax scrubbed off my knees, too.

This has nothing to do with floor waxing but I remember Mom making spaghetti sauce while we were waxing and I never smell paste wax now without smelling spaghetti sauce. Yeah, I’m a little nuts. While we were waxing, we would be listening to “Gunsmoke” on the radio. Yes, it was on the radio before it was on TV and William Conrad played Matt Dillon. I still remember his wonderful deep voice opening every show with “Around Dodge City there’s just one way to handle the killers and the spoilers and that’s with a U.S. Marshall and the smell of gunsmoke.”

Hey, did I get off the topic of spring cleaning? Well, yes, I did. That’s the way I do spring cleaning. I get started on windows then I stop and read awhile then I do a load of laundry and before it’s finished I stop and read again. Does the house get completely cleaned? Heck, no, but I read a lot of books. I think that’s a hoot.

If there was a reality show about my life right now, it could be called “Call of the Mildman.”

Let’s face it – I’m not much of an outdoors type.

Oh, I do enjoy a leisurely hike or a late evening stroll, but I’ve not hunted or fished since my preteen years and only venture into the woods if I’m looking for a lost pet or being chased by an axe wielding psychopath.

(And, of course, once entering the woods, I’m supposed to fall several times – eventually twisting my ankle – thus making it easier for said killer to catch me. Or at least that’s how it happens in the movies.)

Anyway, I’ve found it quite interesting both my oldest son, Myles, 21, and my youngest son, Drake, 9, are “country boys.”

Now Myles, he’s been that way for a while.

If you’ve ever seen the Nickelodeon cartoon “Hey Arnold,” Myles is a doppel-ganger for the Stinky Peterson character.

Though not literally stinky, Myles, like the character, is tall and lanky with a slow, southern drawl.

Like many other county boys of his age, he often wears the standard “uniform” consisting of jeans, a Carhartt jacket, Red Wing or Muck boots, a simple shirt and cap with meticulously folded bill.

Wade DAFFRON
Staff Writer

My oldest son always has a rifle, shotgun or fishing pole in his impossibly large pickup truck and I’ve actually heard him sing along with a Hank Jr. song or two.

So, imagine my surprise when my youngest son, Drake, who I honestly thought was going to be one of those “gamer dudes,” decided recently he wanted to be a county boy.

First, he wanted his shaggy and somewhat adorable hair to be cut.

Then, he went on a camping trip with some family and friends where he learned to “eat stuff out of a can over a fire” – which he thought instantly “country-ized” him.

For his birthday, he did not want some impossible to find Skylander figure, but a LIVE ANIMAL TRAP.

I tried to ignore that request, but his Aunt Missy didn’t.

Drake went on a shopping trip with his aunt and came home with not one, but TWO live animal traps – and a camouflage John Deere cap – with meticulously folded bill.

I humored Drake by helping him set one of the traps with what he thought would be a good bait – a piece of lunch meat folded between two crackers.

“Sure Drake,” I told him, “we’ll probably capture something right away!” (Wink, wink.)

We set the loaded trap in our barn and I pretty much forgot about it. Out of sight, out of mind.

The next day I was informed not only had the trap been activated, but there a big, mean, ugly, angry possum inside of it.

I must admit it took us a while to figure out how to set the trap and we hadn’t taken the time or trouble to learn how to open it if, indeed, an animal was caught.

It is at this point in the story where Aunt Missy returns – literally – to dispose of the possum or opossum, or whatever you wish to call it.

After some tinkering, screaming and fretting, the creature (the possum, not me) was released back into the wild.

“No more...for now,” I told Drake.

But as an industrious child will do, he found a way to continue his studies of nature.

The other morning as I got into my car to travel to work, I noticed an extremely foul and unusual smell.

I looked in the floorboards, back seat, all over, but found nothing. That afternoon, after the car sat baking in the sun, the smell intensified to a point of nausea.

I drove home with the windows down and eagerly sought out Drake once I arrived.

He opened the car door, sniffed, cocked his head, and said, “turtle.”

“What?” I asked.

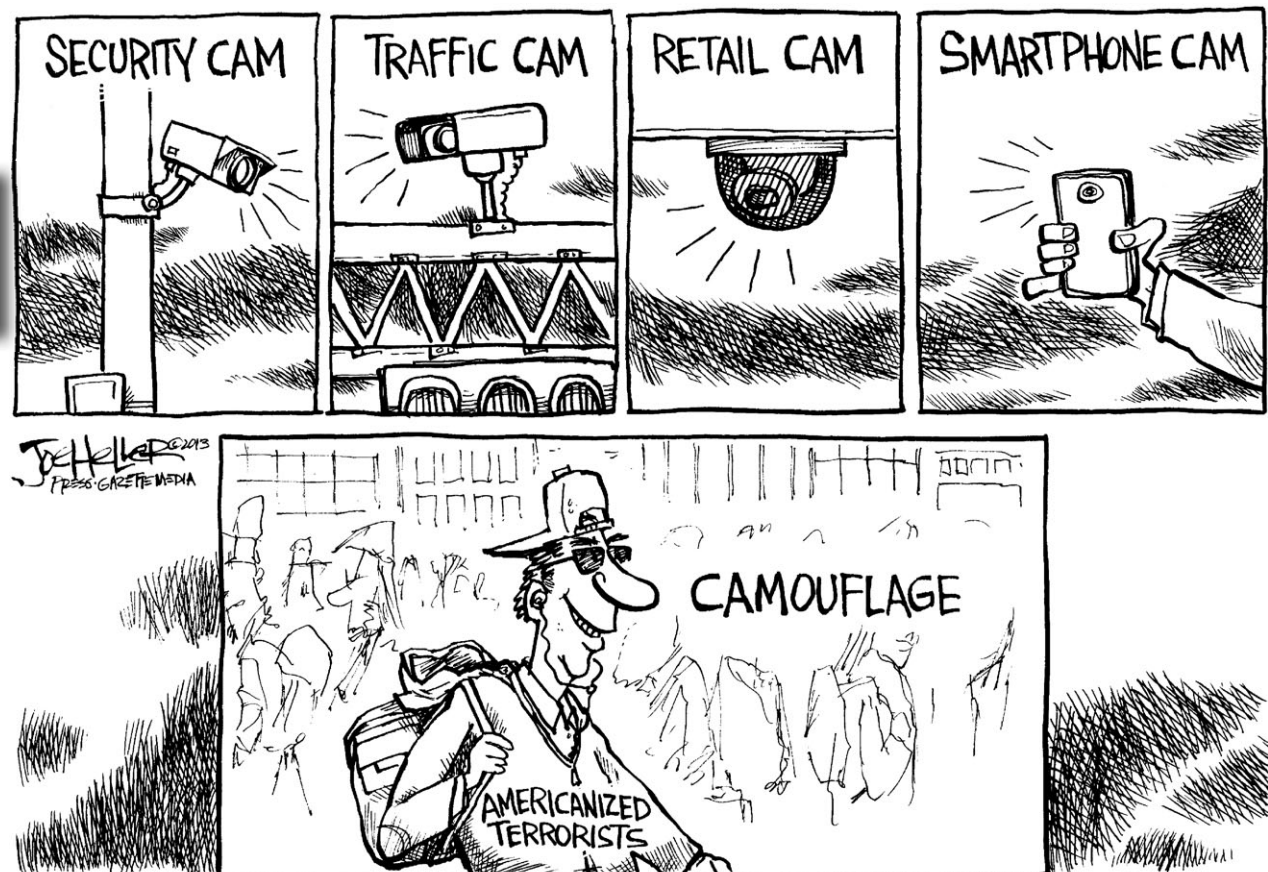

“I reckon it’s turtle,” he said.

Drake reached under the driver’s seat and pulled out a rotting, stinking, turtle shell.

“Thanks,” he said. “I found it in the woods the other day and put it under your seat so I wouldn’t lose it.”

He tipped his cap – with meticulously folded bill – and slowly strolled away.

Country boys can survive...

Do we really need more buzz?

Word came this week that at least one chewing gum maker is now adding caffeine to its gum.

Wrigley announced on Monday the launch of its new Alert Energy Caffeine Gum, containing 40 milligrams of caffeine per piece which is about the same as a half cup of coffee. “The right energy, right now,” the company promises.

What next? Caffeinated macaroni and cheese? Caffeine in children’s cereals?

I can see it now, a cereal company pledging that with just one bowl of sugar laden crispies with added caffeine, a child will be ready to bound to school, full of pep and with renewed energy.

I’m not so sure that school teachers will be overjoyed if this happens as they are already dealing with kids who down so-called “energy drinks”

Larry ROWELL
Staff Writer

filled with caffeine and stimulants.

The FDA tracks deaths that may have possibly been related to these drinks and they are numerous, as many as 25 deaths and 150 illnesses in recent years.

While we want to monitor what our kids consume, many adults are in the same boat as far as caffeine is concerned.

Just about every store that sells foods or snacks has a cardboard box full of small bottles of energy potions on the counter, with these drinks promising to get a person through the mid-afternoon doldrums with a shot of energy.

Used to be an adult would just get another cup of coffee or tea to have a little pick-me-up in mid-afternoon. Now they can have an energy drink while chewing energy gum.

I like my cup of coffee in the morning and occasionally have another during the day. But for us old folks, it’s hard to drink hottest coffee after 4 p.m. and get to sleep at night.

But adding caffeine and other stimulants to just regular foods seems like a bad idea to me.

I don’t want to have to start looking at labels wondering if food manufacturers are adding caffeine to jolt us back awake.

I’ve even seen ads for hyped up water and popcorn, just what you need when watching a movie. I’m nervous enough without adding more stimulants to it.

What worries health officials is the cumulative effect that consuming added caffeine all day long can have on the body, including restlessness and poor sleep.

Heaven only knows what with texting drivers, drivers who eat, apply makeup, and talk on the phone in their cars, we certainly don’t need them falling asleep at the wheel because they slept poorly the night before.

A little caffeine isn’t going to hurt anyone, but the message is that too much of most anything may not be good for the body.

And that goes for fried chicken, cornbread, and collard greens, some of the best foods on the planet.

I just hope they don’t start adding anything to these. If it ain’t broke, don’t fix it, I always say.

on or about Aug. 12, according to the terms of the grant agreement.

"There could be extenuating circumstances for that date to extend," Brown said.

Wright reminded the group that the $500,000 CDBG grant is contingent upon the county getting the ARC grant.

However, Brown said the CDBG probably wouldn't have happened had officials in Frankfort not been confident the ARC grant would come through.

As for the remainder of the $1.9 million to complete the project, leaders hope individual donors will step up with major donations. If not, other measures will be taken, Mayor Steve Sweeney said.

"The city and county has agreed that we'll pretty much borrow the money. But I think contributions will come when they see something going on, I believe we'll have some substantial contributions, said

Sweeney, adding he's already been contacted by a local business about a pledge he called "substantial."

Also, attendees heard a report on a needs assessment that high school and current SCC students at the Casey Center on North U.S. 127 are filling out. The results are expected to be compiled by mid-May.

In addition, Brad Boaz, lead architect on the project, and Suzanne LaFavers, on the design committee for the college, displayed carpet and tile samples as well as paint colors to be used in the building that will house eight classrooms in addition to a computer lab, lounge, and offices.

Boaz said that he hoped to break ground on the project in late September to early October and it could be completed within 12 months.

Three colleges will offer classes at the education center — SCC, Campbellsville University, and Lindsey Wilson College.

Response filed in Williams' lawsuit

By Larry Rowell
Staff Writer

A response filed to a Motion for Discretionary Review before the Kentucky Supreme Court sets the stage for the Court to either take up the matter or dismiss it once-for-all.

Mike Harris, the Columbia attorney representing Casey County Commonwealth's Attorney Gail Williams in a case that seeks to have Williams removed from the Nov. 6 General Election ballot, filed the response on April 22.

"We're waiting for the Supreme Court to rule and we're confident they'll deny the motion," Harris said.

In addition, the response seeks to recover expenses that Williams incurred in this case.

Harris declined to name an amount but said that the Supreme Court will probably ask for additional information if sanctions are imposed.

Casey County resident Ronney Hatter, represented by Danville attorney Richard Clay, filed the original suit stating Williams didn't meet the residency requirements when he filed to run for the Commonwealth's Attorney office.

Williams, nominated on Aug. 20, 2012 by the Republican Party for Casey and Adair counties, became the sole candidate to run for the seat after then Commonwealth's Attorney Brian Wright withdrew from the ballot to run for Circuit Court Judge.

Williams' qualifications as a candidate came into question when Hatter filed suit in Adair Circuit Court on Oct. 12 asking that Williams be removed from the ballot based on his claim that Williams wasn't a resident of Adair County when he filed to run for the seat on Aug. 21.

Kentucky law states that a candidate for commonwealth's attorney must have lived in the state for two years and in the county for a year preceding the election.

Senior Judge Marc Rosen ruled on Nov. 16 in Adair Circuit Court that Williams met the residency requirements to run for office.

Hatter then filed an appeal asking that the Kentucky Court of Appeals rule on the case.

The Court of Appeals upheld Rosen's decision on March 5, stating that Williams was a bona fide (genuine, in good faith) resident of Adair County when he ran in the election.

Williams' response

Harris presented the same argument that was used in response each time the lawsuit and subsequent appeals have been filed in the courts.

Williams moved to Adair County in 1999. Williams has a driver's license from the Adair County Circuit Clerk's Office, he and his wife have personal and business checking accounts in a Columbia bank, two safety deposit boxes at the same bank, their vehicles and travel trailer are registered in Adair County, and he's registered to vote in that county.

In addition, he listed as his residence address the former Dreamland Motel property located at 510 Burkesville St., Columbia.

Hatter presented the argument that Williams sold his house in Columbia in June, rented an apartment in Boyd County, Ky. where his daughter and son-in-law live, and announced in Adair Circuit Court in July that he was in the process of relocating to another area of the state.

Harris' response before the Supreme Court seeks not only to have the matter terminated in his client's favor, he's also seeking to have sanctions imposed against Hatter and/or Clay.

Harris' response also claims that the only reason Clay filed the matter was to harass Williams.

"Further, it is believed that this continued appeal is meant to harass the Respondent (Williams), and to call into question his authority as Commonwealth Attorney," Harris states.

By law, if the court determines that Hatter's lawsuit and appeals were frivolous, then the Court could impose appropriate sanctions against Hatter and Clay, ordering that Harris's court expenses and "reasonable attorney fees" be paid.

Charges

just two days later when she drove a car after having consumed an alcoholic beverage, smoked marijuana, and taken a "nerve" pill, according to a police report.

Sgt. Randy Dial arrested Robbins on April 24 at about 10 p.m. on West Ky. 70, charging her with DUI, careless driving, and operating a motor vehicle on a suspended/revoked operator's license.

These latest charges are added to a list of previous arrests and charges:

■ Cited on March 11, 2012 on a possession of marijuana charge in Lincoln County which was dismissed, said Deputy Clerk Jerree Gilbert in the Lincoln County Circuit Clerk's Office.

■ Arrested on Sept. 10, 2012 on the meth charges.

■ Arrested on a third-degree criminal trespassing charge on March 26, 2013 in Lincoln County.

Two days later, Robbins pleaded guilty to the charge in Lincoln District Court and was assessed a $283 fine.

■ Failed to appear for a court-ordered drug test on April 9, 2013.

■ A bench warrant was issued for Robbins in Lincoln County on April 25, 2013 for failing to pay a $283 fine from a July 27, 2012 case where she was charged with possession of marijuana.

On Jan. 16, Robbins wrote a letter to Vance asking to be released from the Casey County Detention Center.

In the letter, the young woman pledged to turn her life around if she was out of jail.

"While contained within this jail I am sober and upright, but I feel I deserve my freedom in order to prove to the court, the community, and most importantly, myself, that I can do this because I choose to and I choose to because I want a better way of life," she wrote.

In other cases on April 22:
■ Ronald K. Camardi's charges of theft of a controlled substance and menacing were dismissed because Camardi recently passed away.

■ William Chase Abell pleaded guilty and was sentenced to one year in prison for tampering with physical evidence, second-degree possession of a controlled substance, and drug paraphernalia.

■ David Bryan Johnson was sentenced to four-and-one-half years in prison for theft by unlawful taking, theft of identity of another without consent, possession of burglary tools, and third-degree criminal mischief.

■ Brandon L. Meece had his probation revoked and was remanded to serve the remainder of a five year sentence.

■ Lula Mae Rich pleaded guilty to first offense criminal possession of a forged prescription and was sentenced to one year in prison.

Kentucky sees commitment from emergency workers every day

They may wear a variety of uniforms and have different areas of expertise, but one quality binds all first responders — They're the ones who immediately run toward an emergency when the first impulse is to run away.

Their invaluable contributions have been highlighted in recent weeks in the aftermath of the Boston bombings, the ricin-poisoned letters in Washington, D.C., and Mississippi and the explosion at a Texas fertilizer plant.

Kentuckians see that same level of commitment from our emergency workers every day, and it especially shines when we face such catastrophes as the historic winter storm from several years ago or the tornadoes that ripped through sections of Eastern Kentucky early last year. Overall, the commonwealth has "weathered" 11 presidentially declared disasters since 2008.

It takes a lot of training to be ready to act at a moment's notice. Fortunately, this is an area where Kentucky excels.

Eastern Kentucky University, for example, has been educating first responders for nearly 50 years, and the number of those with careers in homeland security who take classes there measures in the thousands every semester. The news program "60 Minutes" recently underscored the quality of the school's professors when it cited one as one of the top five fire experts in the country during its story on a controversial 1970 fire in Tucson, AZ.

Terry MILLS
State Representative

Like ECU, the Kentucky Community and Technical College System (KCTCS) trains thousands of first responders each year as well, as do the Kentucky Board of Emergency Medical Services and the Kentucky Division of Emergency Management.

The Kentucky Office of Homeland Security, meanwhile, plays a crucial role in tying all of this expertise together so that the various agencies can work seamlessly when the need arises. That includes working with the nation's only state-level mobile data network that all local first responders can access for free and helping run the Kentucky Intelligence Fusion Center, which was formed in 2005 to share critical information tied to criminal or terroristic activity. Contributing agencies range from Kentucky State Police and the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet to the FBI and the U.S. Secret Service.

You can help, by the way, if you are aware of any suspicious activity. The number for the center's anonymous tip line is 1-866-EYE-ON-KY.

The Kentucky Office of Homeland Security is also involved in coordinating training exercises. In the last year, our state and local agencies have looked at how best to evacuate the University of Kentucky's Commonwealth Stadium in an emergency and how to handle a nuclear threat in Louisville.

As first responders know all too well, their job of keeping us safe puts them at considerable risk. To honor this ultimate sacrifice, there are statewide memorials for our fallen police officers and firefighters, with the first having more than 500 names and the second having more than 180.

Our country also sets aside time to honor many who serve. Our public-safety dispatchers were recognized earlier this month; the second week of May is known as National Police Week; National EMS Week is the following week; and the National Fallen Firefighters Memorial Weekend will be Oct. 5-6th. In Kentucky, Sept. 11th is "9/11 First Responders Day."

This year, the General Assembly adopted several laws designed with our first responders in mind. One of those will make it easier for those who received firefighter or EMT/paramedic training in the military to use that experience when applying for those jobs at home, while another toughens the penalties for those who are convicted of manslaughter or reckless homicide in cases tied to the death of working police officers or firefighters. This will make sure the defendants serve an appropriate sentence for their actions.

We also extended qualifying death benefits to university police officers and strengthened school-safety plans, so that first responders will be much better informed in those instances when there is an emergency on school grounds.

Last year, the General Assembly created the Kentucky Blue Alert System, so the public will be more aware when a peace officer has been killed or wounded and the offender has not been caught. We also made it easier for our communities to work with first responders in other states in the event of a major catastrophe.

We can never fully re-pay our first responders for all they do for us, but we are forever grateful for the security they provide day and night. Our way of life would not be possible without them.

If you have any thoughts about this or anything else affecting the state, please let me know. My address is Room 329A, Capitol Annex, 702 Capitol Avenue, Frankfort, KY 40601.

You can also leave a message for me or for any legislator at 800-372-7181. For those with a hearing impairment, the number is 800-896-0305.

Card of Thanks

The family of Edward P. Lee would like to thank everyone who has been so supportive and helpful during this difficult time for us in the loss of Edward Lee. First, we would like to thank the EMTs who tried so hard to resuscitate him and even though this was sadly not successful we nevertheless much appreciate their tireless efforts in that regard. We wish to extend our thanks to all those friends and neighbors and other members of the community too numerous to mention for everything they have done to assist both practically and supportively. There are no adequate words to show our deep appreciation. Although Ed only became a member of this community when we moved here a little over three years ago they were some of the very best years of his life and he was extremely happy here. He loved Casey County and Kentucky as a whole. Again, many thanks to all.

The family of Edward P. Lee

NEWS FROM AROUND Kentucky

Man speaks to rescuers' families after mystery solved

HARDIN COUNTY (Elizabeth-town) — After 46 years of mystery about two men who helped save his life when he was a boy, Kevin Boyd learned their identities and spoke to their survivors the day his story appeared. Boyd, of Wichita, Kan., described in The News-Enterprise an incident that could have killed him the weekend of July 4, 1967, and his search to find at least one of the men who jumped into action to help him.

Boyd, who formerly lived in Elizabethtown and Radcliff, said he was swimming and jumping into the water at a common family camp site near Rough River when the operator of a motor boat reversed and lost control. Then an 11-year-old, Boyd was sliced by the blades, chopping away muscle and bone. He needed about 200 stitches. Immediately after the incident, a Hardin County man rushed to apply a tourniquet to Boyd's arm and apply pressure to gashes on his back. He rode with Boyd in the back of a station wagon to a nearby hospital.

The day the story ran in The News-Enterprise, Boyd received a call from the daughter of the man who drove the vehicle, Charles Ray. The woman remembered her father talking about him and his friend, Bobby Stiles, responding to an emergency like the one described. Both men are dead. At the time, Ray and his wife, Verna, lived near Rineyville and Stiles and his wife, Linda, lived in Radcliff. Boyd said the woman gave him contact information for Stiles' wife of 45 years. Boyd said he and Linda Stiles shared memories of the event, which she observed while camping with her husband.

He also expressed gratitude for what her husband did. "Several times, I had goosebumps that it happened so quickly," he said.

Measures would provide $2.5M for Rupp Arena complex

FAYETTE COUNTY (Lexington) — Lexington's Urban County Council is expected to approve two measures that would allow Lexington to receive $2.5 million in state money to begin the planning and design phase of the Rupp Arena complex. The General Assembly appropriated $2.5 million in 2012 for the Lexington Downtown Redevelopment project, which includes Rupp Arena and a new convention center. The funds would come in two annual installments of $1.25 million, which the city will match, said Kevin Atkins, the city's chief development officer.

Frank Butler, project director for the Rupp district project, gave council an update this week. He said work has started in earnest with three consulting firms doing preliminary work. Architects and a project manager are expected to be hired by early June.

At that point, "We'll be full-blown, moving the project ahead," he said.

Kentucky State Parks hosting race series

FRANKLIN COUNTY (Frankfort) — Kentucky State Parks will host the 2013 Unbridled Adventure Race Series, three adventure races that will test participants' physical and mental skills for beginners and veteran racers. The series is being conducted at Kentucky state parks in partnership with the Kentucky Office of Adventure Tourism and Flying Squirrel Adventures, according to a state news release. Each race will include mountain biking on trail and road, trekking on and off trail, paddling on flat or slow-moving water, and navigation with topo map and compass. A given race may also include a short life-jacket-assisted swim or other discipline for which no special expertise is required. Races are open to individuals or teams of two, three or four people. All races are United States Adventure Racing Association-sanctioned and qualify for points in the USARA national standings. Additionally, the Unbridled Adventure Race Series qualifies for additional points under the new USARA points guidelines.

The dates and locations of the races are:

- June 1 – Pennyrile Forest State Resort Park – 6 hour race
- Aug. 17 – Greenbo Lake State Resort Park – 8 hour race
- Nov. 2 – "The Fig" – Natural Bridge State Resort Park – 12 hour race. (This race is not recommended for inexperienced racers.)

There will be a free navigation clinic on Friday night before the first two races in the series. Registration fees range from $75 to $135 per racer. Winners of individual races will receive prizes, and top finishers in the series will receive cash awards. For more information and registration, visit www.flyingsquirreladventures.com. Registration closes two weeks prior to race day.

K9 units sniff out pot, gun on Crittenden Co. campus

CRITTENDEN COUNTY (Marion) — An unannounced search of the Crittenden County High School parking lot led to criminal charges against five students.

According to a news release from Crittenden County Superintendent of Schools Dr. Rachel Yarbrough, four students were charged by local law enforcement with possession of marijuana and/or drug paraphernalia. A fifth student was charged with possession of an unlawful weapon on school property. That person, a 17-year-old male, has been charged with a felony. The four drug charges filed against the other students are misdemeanors.

Discovery of the contraband was made during a sweep of vehicles in the parking lot by a trained dog with K9 Resources, a drug and weapons investigative firm that commonly contracts with school systems and businesses.

Marion Police Chief Ray O'Neal said the drugs found were very small quantities, most likely for personal use. The gun, a .22-caliber hunting rifle with ammunition, was confiscated as evidence for future court proceedings.

O'Neal said he did not believe the gun was intended for any purpose other than hunting, but commented that it was still a serious violation of Kentucky law and school district policy.

Murray man readies for another attempt at record

CALLOWAY COUNTY (Murray) — It is getting to be a habit for Tung Dinh. Having set several Guinness World Records for physical fitness challenges, the longtime Murray martial arts instructor will be attempting yet another. This time, though, his attempt at the record book will be quite more personal. He will attempt to set a new 24-hour pull up record on the 38th anniversary of the end of the war in his native Vietnam, which resulted in him coming to the United States, while honoring the memory of his father, Giao Cong Dinh, who died in December.

"I think this will be a good tribute," Dinh said as he prepared for his pull-up record. "The record stands at 4,022 right now. I'm going to try for 4,100."

Dinh's own abilities to rise to a challenge should also give him strength for this test. In 2000, he ran 100 miles in 24 hours. In 2005, he completed more than 30,000 consecutive sit-ups in 30 hours. Then in 2010, he completed 35,425 sit-ups in 35 hours.

"I've done 2,000 pull-ups in eight hours, so I'm crossing my fingers that I can get it done," said Dinh, noting one more cause he hopes to bring to the forefront. "I am attempting to break another world record now to make a point and draw attention to my cause, helping our wounded U.S. veterans," said Dinh. "Even more important, I want to show how grateful I am for my family's freedom in the U.S. and to all those who are still fighting for our freedom today."

Don't Break the Bank for Summertime Fun

With the days finally getting warmer, many of us are looking forward to summertime and making plans for all of the activities we want to do and events we want to attend. Summer can be a lot of fun, but many summertime adventures can also be expensive. Preparing now for summertime expenses can help soften the blow to your wallet.

Many people do not include summertime expenses, such as vacations, concerts, summer camps, trips to the pool and golf outings, in their monthly budget. Add in the cost of gas, and you can easily overspend. Thinking about and listing the activities and events you want to attend with your family this summer can help you start thinking of ways to pay for them.

When you have a list, look at your monthly budget and current expenses for ways you could save a little now for summertime activities. Making your coffee at home or bringing your lunch to work could add up to big savings over time. You may also consider borrowing books and movies from the library as opposed to purchasing them.

If you plan to be outdoors a lot this summer, you may want to consider canceling your cable for the summer. You may find you don't really miss it. Many shows are in reruns during this time anyway.

If some of your summer plans don't seem possible after reviewing your budget, you can consider free alternatives in your area. Many towns have free festivals or outdoor events that can provide fun and family bonding time. You may also want to consider doing activities closer to home or having a "staycation" where you tour your own area.

This will not only save you on lodging and transportation costs, but many points of interest in your city may offer discounted rates to locals or have free admission times.

Take steps to prevent osteoporosis

By Jennifer Overstreet, A.P.R.N.

Osteoporosis, which causes bones to become delicate and more prone to fracture, is a disease affecting millions of people every day. Osteoporosis may occur without an individual experiencing any symptoms of bone mass loss. Often, a person may find out they have the disease when they develop a fracture or their normal height decreases by several inches.

An estimated 10 million Americans, most of whom are women, have osteoporosis, as projected by the National Osteoporosis Foundation. Osteoporosis causes more than 1.5 million fractures each year, and these fractures are typically located in the hip, spine, and wrist. Osteopenia, which results in low bone mass that increases a person's risk for osteoporosis, affects 18 million Americans.

Many types of people are at risk for osteoporosis. Those who are slender and have a small frame or women with an abnormal lack of menstrual periods have a possibility of developing this disease. Women who have experienced menopause, including women who have had a hysterectomy in their early 30s, are at risk as well. Other risk factors for osteoporosis include an inactive lifestyle, a diet lacking in calcium, eating disorders such as anorexia nervosa or bulimia, cigarette smoking, and overconsumption of alcohol.

In order to reduce the risk of developing this disease, individuals can make healthy bone behavior choices in their everyday lives. Some of these choices include:

- Avoiding smoking
- Participating in weight-bearing exercise, like walking, jogging, or stair-climbing
- Receiving regular bone density tests
- Taking daily or weekly medications as appropriate
- Ingesting ample amounts of calcium and vitamin D in your daily diet (1,000 to 1,200 mg for adult men and women)

With the intention of predicting a person's likelihood of fracturing in the future, bone density tests should be performed in order to help detect osteoporosis before a fracture occurs. Ephraim McDowell Regional Medical Center in Danville offers bone density tests. To decide if a bone density test is right for you, please consult your health care provider.

Jennifer Overstreet is an advanced practice registered nurse who practices at Ephraim McDowell Liberty Family Medical Center, a service of Ephraim McDowell Health. She can be contacted at (606)787-5963.

For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life.

But ye, brethren, are not in darkness, that that day should overtake you as a thief. Ye are all the children of light, and the children of the day: we are not of the night, nor of darkness.

Fred's Finest Liberty Vigilante Committee

Originally published Jan. 24, 1963 issue of The Casey County News.

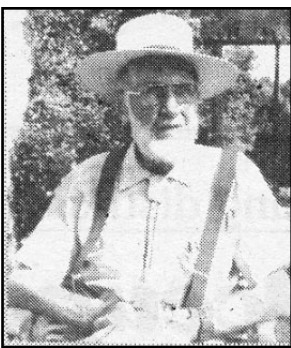

By this time the word has made its rounds even in adjoining towns about Liberty's Vigilante Committee, which is composed of around 64 deputized merchants who have been assisting officers in breaking up the robberies of stores and business places.

They went to work about Dec. 15, and are still working. They work three shifts a night, which means a new crew every four hours driving a different car. It has upset the rogues considerably, particularly when word was passed around that instructions were given to shoot if there is trouble.

County and city judges, county and city attorneys, and all officers are behind the vigilante committee.

Some of these merchants are downright trigger-happy. Almost any crew outworks officers in the four hours they are on. Each crew uses its own technique. Some crews simply find a good place and sit. Others prowl.

By this time it is a little difficult to add up all the possibilities they have run into. Several carloads of wandering, late-hour visitors have been asked to leave. At least two carloads were hauled in for questioning, and one bunch from Harrodsburg was jailed overnight.

The result: One break-in in six weeks, and that was a carefully planned job at Abe Luttrell's store.

As might be expected these things happened — (1) break-ins started increasing in the county (2) several characters have moved to more fertile areas, and (3) post-midnight wandering around town has been greatly decreased.

Other minor improvements will almost certainly result, like a continued organization of merchants and business places. Several crews have been amazed at what goes on in Liberty after dark. They have some recommendations to make. To practically every member of the committee it has been an enlightening experience, and while their fowling pieces are still carrying dust, they may not continue to do so in the future. Several of these men are tough, never mistake that.

That's exactly what the chamber did as they honored 20 top students from the Casey County High School and Middle School.

With local officials and family members in attendance, the students were presented awards "as an acknowledgment of their success."

"These students are the people who are going to be taking over things in a few years," he said.

Among those honored were, from the Casey County Middle School: Jessie Buis, Jenna Carman, Sarah Harne, Breece Hayes, Dakota Hoskins, Cole Jones, Alyxandria Martin, Natalie McAninch, Colton Patterson, and Alex Price.

Casey County High School honorees include: Sarah Coffman, Taylor Collins, Pearl Hebrock, Molly Kirby, Tylyn Leigh, Taylor Leigh, Isaac Sanders, Allison Tinsley, Allison Ware and Ashley Ware.

The luncheon, held at the Central Kentucky AG/EXPO Center, was sponsored by the Casey County Bank — with meals provided by Schafer's Catering.

Tennis teams prepare for regional tournaments

Rebels pick up three wins to finish 12-1

Lady Rebels lose to top-ranked Corbin

By Rita “Peat” Harris
Sports Correspondent

The Rebels played their last regular season match yesterday at Marion County and jump into the regional tournament Friday.

The team, currently 12-1, picked up three wins last week and drew its regional seeding on Monday evening.

“We’re hoping for our team to not only win the tournament this year, but if we can get someone to state (we will) feel very fortunate,” said Coach Phil Williams.

Regional Seeding

Casey sent only one player to the state tournament last year, Ryan Martin, who graduated. Williams sees opportunity for several of his players to advance to the semi-final round, which would qualify them for state competition.

Hunter Pierce and Luke Salyers will be competing as Casey’s singles representatives. Pierce earned a number four seed. Salyers was not ranked but Williams is confident in his skills and bracket position.

“Hunter went up in the bracket, so if he wins out he’ll face the number one seed in the tournament and we think he has that capability,” Williams said. “Salyers didn’t get a seed but he plays like he should have and that can be advantageous for us.”

In doubles, Taylor Leigh and Skyler Wright earned a number three rank and a bye

Justin Underwood will play in the regional tennis tournament this weekend in the doubles competition. He and his teammate, Trent Rodgers, have spent the entire season competing as a duo in doubles play.

in the first round. Trent Rodgers and Justin Underwood are unranked.

“I feel like they’ve got an opportunity to move forward,” Williams said on the second duo, despite being unranked. “We feel like (Leigh and Wright) have a good opportunity to make it to the semi-finals.”

Seasonal Play

Casey started out the week by defeating Garrard County, 6-3. After Pierce and Luke were trumped by Garrard’s one and two seeds, Casey’s lower seeds all picked up wins.

Skyler Wright and Taylor Leigh fell in a close number one doubles match, 7-9, and the two other Rebel doubles teams both earned wins.

Casey won 7-2 over Boyle County on Thursday. The team was triumphant in all six singles matches and Leigh and Wright captured the number one singles win.

Williams gave the opportunity for a couple of his younger doubles teams to compete in the two and three seeds, where they were both defeated.

The team played a five-point match at Danville and won 4-1. Pierce and Salyers prevailed in the one and two singles seeds. Luke Coffman stepped up to play the number three seed singles match and lost 2-6, 1-6.

Wright and Leigh won the number one doubles seed while Trent Rodgers and Justin Underwood won the two seed.

“I really feel we’re playing our best tennis and that’s where you want to be at this time,” Williams said, prior to the regional seeding draws. “It’s just a matter of competing. You’ve got to have luck to go with it. We’ll do the best we can do.”

The regional tournament will begin Friday at Berea College and be played through the weekend.

Sports Correspondent

The Lady Rebels took their first regular season loss last Friday when they traveled to Corbin for tough competition to prepare them for this weekend’s 12th Regional Tournament.

“Even though we lost the match our girls played the best tennis they’ve played all season,” said Coach Tommy Wood. “I think everybody who went out there and played, played well. I was not disappointed at all.”

Regional Seeding

The team is now 13-1 and the regional seeding meeting was held Monday evening.

“(Winning region) is always our goal but it seems a little bigger this year because we have the experience,” said Coach Tommy Wood.

The Lady Rebels are undefeated as a team in the 12th Region; however, whether or not they make school history and earn Casey’s first ever regional title will be dependent on each individual match played at the tournament.

“Hopefully we can be focused and have a purpose in mind to win every game, every match and win every point we can,” Wood said.

Competing in singles for Casey County will be Tylyn Leigh and Haley Owens. Leigh earned the number one seed in the tournament while Owens will compete from the number four position. Erin Pigman from Mercer is number two and Emily Major from Garrard is number three.

Allie Tinsley and Madison Lee earned the number three doubles seed behind a duo from Mercer County and one from Boyle County. Chelsey Lynn and Sara Coffman will compete as Casey’s second doubles team and earned the number six seed

“Our main thing is focus, play hard, cut down on the unforced errors and be consistent,” Wood said about the tournament.

Seasonal play

Casey took a clean sweep over Garrard County, 9-0, last Tuesday at home. Garrard put up some resistance in doubles play but all three of the Lady Rebel duos prevailed.

The ladies then hosted Boyle County on Thursday for a 7-2 victory. Tinsley fell in a close number three singles match, 7-9 for the team’s only singles loss. She and Lee also lost in the number one doubles match.

Casey earned two wins against the top ranked Corbin team and fell 2-7.

The Lady Rebels’ two wins came in super tiebreakers. Coffman won 6-4, 6-6 (11-9) in the six seed singles. Amber Pierce and Laci Lee won 6-2, 4-6 (10-7) in the three seed doubles.

“Corbin has very talented players and they win their region about every year,” Wood said. “We learned we can play with the best. It seemed like we were more focused when we stepped out there to play and I just hope we can play with that focus at the region.”

The team played their final regular season match yesterday at Pulaski Southwestern. The first round of the regional tournament will be played Friday at Berea College. Semi-finals and finals will be held throughout the weekend.

Softball team gains second district win over Rockcastle

By Rita “Peat” Harris
Sports Correspondent

A second district win last week brings the Lady Rebels’ overall record to 6-11. Casey defeated Rockcastle County 16-8 before falling to Pulaski County, 9-2.

“To the girls credit, I got the sense (losing) bothers them more because they’ve raised their own expectations,” said Coach Bryan Cross. “They are starting to believe they are pretty good.”

With less than a month before the district tournament, the team is shaping up despite a few players missing action due to injuries.

Serena Spoonhour is out with a hairline fracture in her ankle. Autumn Woods was out a couple of games after having her wisdom teeth removed and pitcher Amber Wesley spent time recovering from a car accident.

Kyra Eads winds up to pitch at a recent Lady Rebel home game. The eighth grader stepped up as the team’s primary pitcher last week while junior Amber Wesley was recovering from an accident.

Rockcastle’s scoring slowed after the first two innings. They put up one to Casey’s seven in the third and scored two more in the sixth. Casey’s only scoreless inning came in the fifth.

Nine Lady Rebels scored for the team and seven had more than one run. Allison Clark and Raven Clements both had two RBIs.

Pulaski County

Casey played Pulaski close until the last two innings of the game on Thursday. The Lady Maroons came out on top 9-2.

“We were down 2-3 going into the sixth. We were playing great defense and we were starting to hit the ball,” Cross said.

Clark and Tia Smith scored runs in the second and fourth.

“I told them to keep doing what they were doing — do routine plays, make good catches and throws and we’ll come back in the seventh and win the thing,” Cross said. “Then we go out and commit five errors.”

After not scoring in the fifth or sixth inning and trailing by only one, Casey gave up six runs in the sixth inning. Pulaski went from a one-point lead to a seven point lead.

“We’d had one to two errors up to that point,” Cross said. “They hit a double in the gap that hurt us. Then we dropped a fly ball and a couple of things like that and suddenly we were down 5-2 instead of 3-2.”

The Lady Rebels traveled to Marion County last night and will compete at Somerset today.

Rebel baseball team gets win despite slim roster

By Rita “Peat” Harris
Sports Correspondent

The young Rebel baseball team continues to pick up wins despite their youth and injuries. Casey took a 12-0 district loss to the talented team from Pulaski County last Thursday and then prevailed 10-2 over Burgin on Friday.

The team was a player short last week with sophomore Clayton Jakus out due to a death in the family.

“We were actually short with injuries anyway, and we didn’t have him (Jakus) on either one of those games, but the team rallied behind it,” said Coach Greg Hammond.

Senior Alex Atwood takes a swing at a recent game on the Rebels’ home field. Atwood, the team’s top pitcher, had nine strike outs in six innings during the 10-2 victory over Burgin last week.

Pulaski County

The Maroons earned their second district win over Casey in the decisive 12-0 victory.

Pulaski ran away with the game early, putting up nine runs in the first inning. Casey held them for the next two innings before the Maroons added three more runs in the fourth. Both teams were scoreless in the fifth.

Senior Alex Atwood was the only Rebel to get any hits during the contest, with two.

Despite the loss, Hammond is not discouraged by his team’s play or attitude.

“We’re at no time in the game throwing in the towel,” Hammond said. “They keep giving everything they have which is basically all I can ask of them. They’re getting better each outing. In the long run it’s going to pay off.”

Burgin

It was Casey’s second win over the Burgin Bulldogs, taking a 10-2 triumph.

Atwood had nine strikeouts from the mound and pitched six innings.

“Alex pitched a dynamite game,” Hammond said. “I didn’t have to pull him out after six innings, but for him to be eligible for (our next game) I needed to and we felt comfortable with the 10-2 lead.”

The Rebels went up in 4-0 in the first inning and added on another run in the second before Burgin earned their first run to make the score 5-1.

The Bulldogs held Casey for the next two innings and scored their next run in the fifth; however Casey closed out scoring two, two and one.

Runs were earned by six players while six had hits and three earned RBIs. Hunter Christian had the most runs with three while Nick Goode had two RBIs and two hits.

“I can’t tell you how much that means for a freshman or sophomore to get this experience,” Hammond said. “We’ve cut down on the errors, so I think the rest of the season you’ll see us play ok.”

The team’s Monday game at Monticello was canceled due to the opponent’s wet field.

The Rebels will play at Rockcastle tomorrow.

Horse Power vs. Horsepower

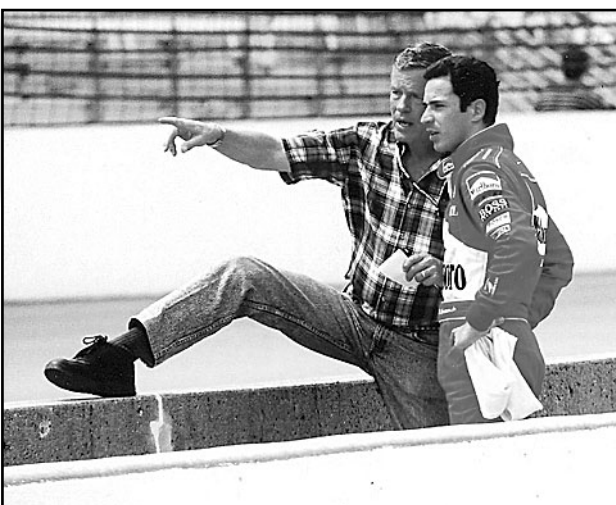

Chris ZOLLNER
Sports Correspondent

comparison, last year’s Derby had a record-setting attendance of more than 165,000. Known as “the greatest two minutes in sports,” the Derby is all about the horse and the pomp and circumstance more than any individual jockey or owner. Even in an area built on the horse industry, this year’s horse is not likely to be remembered more than a few years unless they become the next Man O’ War, Sir Barton, or Citation and get a street named after them in Lexington.

All across the Bluegrass, parties are being planned, and backyards are being spruced up in preparation of Derby Day festivities. Barbecue’s will be fired up this weekend and Derby pies will cool on window sills, while friends and neighbors who have never been within lasso’s reach of a horse will get together, pull a number from a hat, and cheer on their favorite for less time than it takes to pop a bag of microwave popcorn.

But for those who are actually at the Derby, the party will start at day break and run through the night. Even at this late date tickets are still available and, for the most part, easy to get. Forty bucks will get you to the infield where the real party is, and for a few hundred you can rub elbows with the folks in the suits and giant hats up in the grandstands.

In a 2001 photo, three-time Indy 500 winner Bobby Unser shared his expertise with rookie Helio Castroneves during practice leading up to the race. Castroneves who currently holds the series points lead went on to win the race and will look to add his name to the short list of four-time winners on May 26.

Many a mint julep will be downed and many a small (or maybe large) wager will be placed in hopes of hitting the trifecta or that long shot no one expects to be there in the end. It will all be over before you know it, and everyone will trudge home. In a week or maybe three, the chances of a triple-crown winner will be dashed, and most of us will go back to not knowing one horse from another for another 11 months.

Horsepower

Of course, for some people, two minutes isn’t much of a race, and 20-some horses leave a bit to be desired in the power department. For you, a quick trip up I-65 and you will find the Indianapolis Motor Speedway and “the greatest spectacle in racing” with more horsepower than you can shake a stick shift at. The Indy 500, with 33 cars in the field, and each generating more than 650 horsepower, you are talking some major muscle. At 1,565-pounds, an Indy-Car Series car generates 5,000 pounds of down force at 220 mph, enough to actually allow the car to run upside down if that speed is maintained.

Indy is a few decades younger than the Derby but is celebrating its 97th running this year, having only missed a few years due to World Wars I and II since its inaugural race in 1911. And when it comes to attendance, the 500 dwarfs any single day event (and most multiple day ones as well) with its typical attendance in excess of a quarter of a million fans.

Where the Derby has iconic names like Secretariat and Seattle Slew, Indy has its own legends with names like Foyt, Unser, and Mears. Affirmed in 1978 was the last of 11 horses to ever win the triple-crown (Derby, Preakness, and Belmont), and in 1991 Rick Mears became only the third driver to win a fourth Indy 500. Helio Castroneves, who won his first during his rookie year (2001), followed it up with wins in 2002 and 2009, and currently holds the series points lead and hopes to join the ranks of four-time winners before the month is out.

For the city of Indianapolis, the 500 is not just a one day or even a one weekend event. It kicks off Derby weekend with the 500 Festival mini-marathon, the nation’s largest half marathon, one that includes a lap around the 2.5 mile track for all participants. And, unlike most auto racing events, the practice and qualifications for the 500 are drawn out. The track opens for practice on May 11 this year with nearly 40 teams working to make the field of 33 with qualifications taking place on Pole Day, May 18, followed by Bump Day on the May 19.

Liberty resident Bill Marvel saw his first Indianapolis 500 in 1941 at the age of 10 after asking his parents where all those cars lined up outside their home on the west side of Indianapolis were going. He would have to wait until 1946 to see his next race after the attack on Pearl Harbor resulted in the cancellation of racing for four years; he has not missed one since making a run that continues nearly seven decades later.

When asked in a Casey County News poll whether they’d pick a free ticket to the Derby or the 500 the results were fairly split; 30 Facebook votes were split 14-14, (with two for neither) and the regular website only brought in three votes — 2-1 for the Derby. Michael Goode chose the Derby having attended the 500 on several occasions, and Lydia Yaden picked the Derby as well, hoping for an excuse to buy and wear a fancy hat.

Time is running out to get those Derby tickets and the hand selection is probably getting pretty thin by now as well, but there is still time to plan a run to Indy. Tickets for practice and qualification days are $10 and $15 at the gate, respectively, and there are still race day tickets available directly from IMS. Infield tickets run $30, or you can have a seat in the stands for less than $100. Another great thing about Indianapolis is they allow licensed ticket resellers (scalpers) around the track, so even if you don’t have a ticket come race morning, you can still head to the track knowing you will get a seat.

“I thought these kids gave us everything they had this season,” said Coach Darryl Burkett. “We weren’t as consistent as I wanted us, but the season was certainly a step in the right direction.”

The girls finished the season with 15-16 record. The team was repeat 47th District Champions and the 12th Region runner-up for a second year in a row.

Casey trackers fine tune events in preparation of regional meet

By Rita “Peat” Harris
Sports Correspondent

Casey’s runners, jumpers and throwers saw more strides of improvement last week and are now amid their final week of competition prior to the regional meet on May 11.

“We still have work to do, there’s no doubt about that, but we have everybody we need in the right positions,” said Coach Matt Willoughby. “It’s a matter of fine tuning.”

The team competed in two meets last week \an all-comers meet at Pulaski County on Tuesday and the Boyle County Invitational on Friday.

While the girls’ did get third place as a team at Boyle County, the coach said performances were not up to par and several athletes could not compete after participating in senior skip day.

“They were distracted,” Willoughby said, commenting that the high school prom was the next day. “We finished a lot better than I thought we would because we were not doing as good as we normally compete.”

Girls

Lakken Miller was Casey’s top performer at Boyle and Pulaski.

She captured two second place finishes at Boyle \ the 400-meter dash and high jump. She also earned fifth in the 200-meter dash and ran a leg of Casey’s 4x100-meter relay team, which finished fifth.

Miller is consistently doing well in her individual events. She was also second in the 400 meter and high jump at Pulaski County.

Shelby Stringer, Kelli Wilson and Tiara Cochran join Miller in the quarter mile relay at both meets. Their Boyle County fifth place performance was far from their best. The team ran over a second faster, 54.0, at Pulaski to earn second.

Tiara Cochran competes in both the 100-meter and 300-meter hurdle events for the Casey County track and field team. She recently placed third in both events at an all-comers meet at Pulaski County.

Stringer matched her personal best, 10’0”, in the pole vault at Pulaski County and won the event, but finished second at Boyle with a height of 8’0”. Nicole Nagy is adding pole vault points consistently as well. She finished third at both meets last week.

Nagy also earned points at both meets in the triple jump, finishing fourth at Boyle and fifth at Pulaski. Despite placing higher at Boyle, Nagy’s better jump of 28’11” came at Pulaski.

Abby Meece broke 100’ in the discus at Pulaski County, 102’9”, for second place, and also earned second at Boyle despite throwing several feet shy of her best. She also took fifth in the shot put at Boyle.

The teams hurdlers continue to score points. At Pulaski, Cochran posted a time of 52.7 in the 300-meter hurdles, earning third, and 18.1 for third place in the 100-meter event. Cochran was fourth in the 100-meter event at Boyle while teammate Jadrian Couch earned sixth in the 300-meter race.

Casey’s lone distance runner, Kelsey Arthur, is consistently earning points. She was third in the two mile at Pulaski and took fourth and fifth in the two mile and mile at Boyle.

Boys

Casey’s lone first place at Pulaski County came in a tie on the track’s fastest relay event. The Rebels’ 4x100-meter relay team, consisting of Collin Miller, Alex Bolin, Micah Smith and Zach Scott, tied Pulaski’s sprint team with a time of 46.2.

“They did really well. I kept telling them if we ever get things close to right we’ll be pretty competitive,” said Willoughby. “That wasn’t a perfect run by far, though. There are things we can do to make that (time) better.”

Willoughby said the team has a chance to advance to the state competition if they get their handoffs and performances right at region. He also hopes to have a competitive 4x400-meter relay team at region.

John Shoaf, who would likely lead the quarter mile relay team, continues to drop his time in the open 400-meter event. Shoaf did not compete at Boyle but ran 53.9 at Pulaski for third place. He was fourth in the half mile.

Bolin was fourth in the 200-meter at Pulaski but was also absent from competition at Friday’s invitational.

Smith achieved his personal best in the high jump at Pulaski County, clearing 6’2”. He took second place in the event when an opponent also cleared the same height but had fewer scratches. He won the event at Boyle County, clearing 6’0”

Smith’s pole vault performances continue to soar, earning first at both meets last week. He earned a second gold at Boyle by clearing 12’0” in the vault and cleared 11’6” at Pulaski.

The teams traveled to Rockcastle County yesterday and will compete in the Central Kentucky Classic Friday, closing out their regular season competition.
